

Electricity North West Limited

Compliance Report – December 2022

1 Introduction

Electricity North West Limited (ENWL) holds an Electricity Distribution Licence granted by the Office of Gas and Electricity Markets (Ofgem). This enables it to undertake electricity distribution services to customers within its Distribution Services Area, which is broadly the North West of England.

Under Standard Licence Condition 43 (SLC43) – Appointment of Compliance Officer, ENWL must appoint a competent person (known as the Compliance Officer) to facilitate compliance with the relevant requirements. The Licensee must produce and publish a report (the Compliance Report) about its compliance with the relevant requirements and its implementation of the practices, procedures and systems adopted in accordance with the Compliance Statement required under Standard Licence Condition 42 (SLC42)¹.

In producing this Compliance Report, the relevant requirements are: -

- SLC42 – Independence of Distribution Business and restricted use of confidential information
- Paragraph 9 of SLC4 – No abuse of the licensee’s special position, which prohibits cross-subsidy between the licensee’s Distribution Business and any other business of the licensee or an Affiliate or Related Undertaking of the licensee
- Paragraph 1 of SLC19 – Prohibition of discrimination under chapters 4 and 5, which prohibits the licensee from discriminating between any person or class or classes of persons when providing use of systems or connections or carrying out works for the purposes of connection
- Paragraphs 1 and 3 of SLC41 – Prohibition of discrimination under Chapter 9, which prohibit the licensee from discriminating between any person or class or classes of persons when providing, respectively legacy metering equipment and data services
- SLC43B – Prohibition on generating by licensee

2 Compliance with obligations

The practices, procedures and systems set out within the published Compliance Statement are in place to enable ENWL to monitor and ensure that compliance is maintained. Since publication of our Compliance Statement in December 2019, ENWL has demonstrated compliance with the relevant requirements.

Throughout the year, compliance is routinely tested by the Compliance Officer and any issues identified are resolved or escalated to the Executive Leadership Team.

A copy of this Compliance Report has been provided to Ofgem.

3 Activities of the Compliance Officer

Accountability for compliance with ENWL's Independence of the Distribution Business and restricted use of Confidential Information Compliance Statement has been assigned to the Engagement and Strategy Director who is a member of the Executive Leadership Team. Responsibility has been delegated to the Head of Economic Regulation who acts as the Compliance Officer.

ENWL has in place managerial and operational systems to ensure the organisation can meet its regulatory obligations and the company has in place policies and procedures that employees are required to follow. All new employees undertake mandatory induction training to raise awareness of the regulatory environment in which ENWL operates and a refresher training programme is in place for those directly associated with regulatory reporting.

ENWL maintains a Table of Accountabilities which documents accountability and responsibility for each licence condition. Briefings are provided to managers named within the Table of Accountabilities to ensure they understand their responsibilities. In the event of personnel changes, we brief the new post holder of their regulatory accountabilities. Employees are made aware of the Table of Accountabilities through regulatory training.

Through the role of Compliance Officer during the year, the Head of Economic Regulation has carried out the following activities: -

- Provided a regulatory awareness e-learning training course and identified those within the organisation who would benefit from its completion and reviewed who completed the course
- Ensured that new business employees are introduced to the regulatory regime through an induction briefing
- Maintained the Table of Accountabilities throughout the period ensuring this accurately reflects ENWL's licence and commercial code obligations, that these are being discharged appropriately within the organisation and that routine briefings are completed as required
- Supported an internal audit of the Customer Load Active System Services (CLASS) process
- Evaluated through compliance assurance assessments, a sample of ENWL's business practices, procedures and systems, as set out in the Compliance Statement, to test their effectiveness
- Actions resulting from the compliance assurance programme are tracked and progress is regularly reported to the Executive Leadership Team
- Contributed alongside the other DNOs to the RIIO- ED2 licence drafting process, to secure relevant and effective ED2 licence conditions
- Held an Executive briefing for ENWL's new Chief Executive Officer on business separation and regulatory compliance

4 Complaints in relation to relevant requirements

Should any complaints be received in relation to the relevant requirements, these are referred to the Compliance Officer for investigation. During the year the compliance officer engaged with one connection customers representative directly in connection with service delivery, which was not found to be a complaint in relation to relevant requirements. A second customer communication is currently being investigated. The role of the Compliance Officer is to investigate and determine if there is any issue in relation to the relevant requirements recommend any remedial action that the investigation has demonstrated to be necessary.

As set out in our Compliance Statement, should additional support be required to assist the Compliance Officer in the investigation, this will be drawn from the appropriate teams across the organisation including the Economic Regulation Team and the Risk, Control and Assurance Team. If required, external third party organisations may be appointed to carry out assurance activities.

5 Managerial and Operational Controls

ENWL has an organisational structure consisting of a Chief Executive Officer supported by an Executive Leadership Team. These individuals have responsibility for ensuring compliance with the licence conditions including the relevant requirements set out in section 1 above.

The Chief Executive Officer and Chief Financial Officer are executive members of the ENWL Board. The Board includes both executive and non-executive directors.
